

As the array grows larger, the insert array grows exponentially while it seems that the append array grows linearly.

The `.unshift` method is slower because it requires the array to be shifted over once and then pushing the new number into the beginning while the `.push` just adds the number to the end of the array.